

Speaking

Comparing Types of Schools

Pairs · 8-10 min

In pairs, compare two different types of schools (for example, a public school and a boarding school) and decide which one you would prefer to attend and why.

Useful language: In a public school, students usually..., Unlike a vocational school, a boarding school..., I would prefer... because..., One advantage/disadvantage of... is...

1. Choose two types of schools from the vocabulary list.
2. Take turns describing each type of school.
3. Discuss the advantages and disadvantages of each.
4. Agree together on which type you would prefer, giving reasons.

Advice for a Stressed Classmate

Groups of 3-4 · 10 min

Roleplay a conversation in which one student explains they feel stressed and overwhelmed about school, and the others give advice using must/can't for deduction and suggestions for coping with stress.

Useful language: You must be exhausted., That can't be easy., Have you tried...?, It might help to..., I usually cope by...

1. One student explains a school-related worry (exams, workload, a presentation).
2. The other students listen and make a deduction using must/can't.
3. The group suggests at least two coping strategies.
4. Swap roles so everyone practises giving advice.

Writing

My School and My Routine

120-150 words

Write a paragraph describing your school (type of school, timetable) and your regular and extracurricular activities.

Plan:

1. Note the type of school you attend and one or two facts about it.
2. List your regular weekly activities and how often you do them.
3. List one or two extracurricular activities you take part in.
4. Order your ideas from general (school) to specific (activities).

Checklist:

- ☐ I described my type of school.
- ☐ I used at least three adverbs of frequency.
- ☐ I mentioned at least one extracurricular activity.
- ☐ I checked my spelling and punctuation.

An Email of Advice About School Stress

100-130 words

A friend has written to you saying they feel stressed and overwhelmed about their workload. Write an email giving them advice on how to cope.

Plan:

1. Open with a friendly greeting and acknowledge how your friend feels.
2. Give two or three pieces of practical advice.
3. Use must/can't to show understanding of their situation.
4. Close with an encouraging final sentence.

Checklist:

- ☐ I addressed my friend's feelings.
- ☐ I gave at least two pieces of advice.
- ☐ I used must/can't correctly at least once.
- ☐ I ended with an encouraging sentence.