Be going to (plans and predictions)

We use be going to for plans and intentions decided before the moment of speaking, and for predictions based on present evidence.

Konuşma anından önce karar verilmiş planlar ve niyetler için, ayrıca şu anki kanıtlara dayanan tahminler için be going to kullanırız.

When? Use it for a personal plan ('I am going to become a doctor') or a prediction you can already see signs of ('Look at those clouds, it is going to rain').

Kişisel bir plan için ('Doktor olacağım') veya şu anda belirtisini gördüğümüz bir tahmin için kullanılır ('Şu bulutlara bak, yağmur yağacak').

Positive

- Subject + am/is/are + going to + base verb
- She is going to work abroad.

Negative

- Subject + am/is/are + not + going to + base verb
- He is not going to change jobs.

Question

- Am/Is/Are + subject + going to + base verb?
- Are they going to hire new staff?

Short answers

- Yes, I am. / No, I'm not.
- Yes, she is. / No, she isn't.

Common mistakes

- ~~I go to become a doctor.~~ → I am going to become a doctor.
- ~~She is going become a nurse.~~ → She is going to become a nurse.

1. Which sentence describes a plan?

- a. It's going to rain.
- b. I'm going to become an engineer.
- c. She will call you back.
- d. I'll open the window.

2. We _____ (visit) the career fair next Monday.

3. He _____ (not apply) for that job — he changed his mind.

4. Look at the queue — it going to be a long wait. — True / False

5. Put the words in order: to / going / she / study / is / law

6. Choose the correct question form.

- a. Are you going become a pilot?
- b. Are you going to become a pilot?
- c. You going to become a pilot?
- d. Do you going to become a pilot?

7. Rewrite as a prediction from evidence: The sky is very dark. (It ____)

8. By the time she graduates, she _____ (already/decide) on a career path.

9. Which context best fits be going to rather than will?

- a. An offer to help right now
- b. A promise made spontaneously
- c. A plan announced before the conversation started
- d. A prediction with no evidence at all

Will / won't (instant decisions, offers, promises, predictions with evidence)

We use will for instant decisions made at the moment of speaking, offers, promises, and general predictions or opinions about the future.

Konuşma anında verilen ani kararlar, teklifler, sözler ve gelecekle ilgili genel tahmin/görüşler için will kullanırız.

When? Use will when you decide something right now ('The bag is heavy, I'll carry it'), promise something, or give an opinion about the future without present evidence.

Bir şeye o an karar verdiğinizde ('Çanta ağır, ben taşıyım'), söz verdiğinizde veya şu anki bir kanıt olmadan gelecek hakkında görüş bildirdiğinizde will kullanılır.

Positive

- Subject + will + base verb
- I will call the office tomorrow.

Negative

- Subject + won't + base verb
- She won't miss the deadline.

Question

- Will + subject + base verb?
- Will you be free on Monday?

Short answers

- Yes, I will. / No, I won't.

Common mistakes

- ~~I will to call you later.~~ → I will call you later.
- ~~She wills answer the phone.~~ → She will answer the phone.

1. The phone rings and you decide right now to answer it. What do you say?

- a. I'm going to answer it.

7. Rewrite as a promise: I never forget your birthday (future promise). (I ____)

8. A: The printer isn't working. B: Don't worry, I _____ (fix) it now.

9. Which sentence best shows the difference between will and be going to?

- a. I will study law next year because I already decided.
- b. I'll answer the door — that's probably the delivery.
- c. I am going to answer the door right now spontaneously.
- d. I will going to become a doctor.

Present Continuous for future arrangements

We use the present continuous to talk about future arrangements that are already fixed, usually with a specific time or place and often involving another person.

Genellikle belirli bir saat veya yerle ve çoğunlukla başka bir kişiyle önceden planlanmış gelecekteki düzenlemeler için şimdiki zamanın hikayesini değil, present continuous'u kullanırız.

When? Use it for a diary-type plan that is already organised, such as a meeting, appointment, or trip with a set time.

Zaten organize edilmiş, belirli bir saati olan bir toplantı, randevu veya seyahat gibi ajanda tipi bir plan için kullanılır.

Positive

- Subject + am/is/are + verb-ing
- I am starting my new job on Monday.

Negative

- Subject + am/is/are + not + verb-ing
- We aren't meeting until next week.

Question

- Am/Is/Are + subject + verb-ing?
- Are you seeing the manager today?

Short answers

- Yes, I am. / No, I'm not.

Common mistakes

- ~~I meeting the manager tomorrow.~~ → I am meeting the manager tomorrow.
- ~~She is meeting the manager usually on Fridays.~~ → She usually meets the manager on Fridays.

1. Which sentence describes a fixed arrangement?

- a. I'm going to find a job someday.
- b. I'm meeting the recruiter at 4 pm today.
- c. I will probably get a job.
- d. I usually work on weekdays.

2. We _____ (have) a school careers day next Tuesday.

7. Rewrite as a fixed arrangement: I have an appointment with the dentist on Friday at 3. (I ____)

8. By the time you arrive, I _____ already _____ (meet) the manager (use present continuous idea contrasted).

9. Which best explains why we say 'I'm meeting her at six' and not 'I meet her at six' for a one-time future plan?

- a. Present simple is for arranged future events.
- b. Present continuous describes a specific, already-fixed future arrangement, unlike the habitual present simple.
- c. Both forms mean the same thing.
- d. Present continuous is only for actions happening right now.

Jobs That Didn't Exist Ten Years Ago

Before you read

- Look at the title. What kind of jobs do you think this text will mention?
- Can you name a job that didn't exist when your parents were your age?

Ten years ago, nobody had heard of a 'drone pilot' or a 'social media manager.' Today these are real careers that thousands of people do every day. Technology is changing so fast that schools cannot always prepare students for jobs that don't exist yet.

Experts say that in the next ten years, we are going to see even more new careers. For example, some companies are already training 'AI trainers,' people who teach computer programs to understand human language better. Other new roles include 'sustainability consultants,' who help businesses reduce waste, and 'virtual event planners,' who organise online conferences and parties.

Not every new job needs a university degree. Many require practical skills, creativity, and the ability to learn quickly. A student who is going to succeed in this changing job market will probably need to update their skills again and again throughout their career.

So what does this mean for students today? It means staying curious, being open to unfamiliar careers, and not worrying too much if a job doesn't have a name yet. The most important skill of all might be the willingness to keep learning.

1. According to the text, what is one example of a new job?
 - a. Drone pilot
 - b. Bus driver
 - c. Shop assistant
 - d. Postman
2. What do 'sustainability consultants' help businesses do?
 - a. Reduce waste
 - b. Sell more products
 - c. Hire new staff
 - d. Build websites
3. According to the text, every new job requires a university degree. — True / False
4. The most important skill of all might be the _____ to keep learning.
5. What is the writer's main message?
 - a. Students should worry about the future.
 - b. Staying curious and willing to learn is important for future careers.
 - c. Only technology jobs will exist in the future.
 - d. University degrees are no longer useful.
6. Rewrite in your own words: 'A student who is going to succeed... will probably need to update their skills again and again.' (Successful students...)

Preparing for a Job Interview

Before you read

- Have you ever been in an interview, for a job, a school project, or a club? What was it like?
- What do you think makes someone feel confident in an interview?

Getting ready for a job interview can feel stressful, but a little preparation makes a big difference. Career coaches say the biggest mistake candidates make is not researching the company beforehand. Before any interview, it's a good idea to learn about what the company does and why you want to work there.

On the day of the interview, arriving early is essential. Being even five minutes late can create a bad impression before you say a single word. Most experts suggest arriving at least ten minutes before the appointment, then using that time to relax and review your notes.

During the interview, employers often ask questions like 'Where do you see yourself in five years?' This question isn't about giving a perfect answer; it's about showing that you have thought about your future and that you are going to work hard to reach your goals.

Finally, at the end of the interview, it's polite to thank the interviewer for their time and ask when you will hear back about the decision. A short follow-up message the next day, thanking them again, can leave a positive final impression.

1. What is the biggest mistake candidates make, according to the text?
 - a. Arriving too early
 - b. Not researching the company
 - c. Asking too many questions
 - d. Wearing formal clothes
2. How early do experts suggest arriving?
 - a. Exactly on time
 - b. Five minutes late
 - c. At least ten minutes early
 - d. One hour early
3. The question 'Where do you see yourself in five years?' is mainly about giving a perfect memorised answer.
— True / False
4. It's polite to thank the interviewer and ask when you will _____ back about the decision.
5. What does the text suggest doing after the interview?
 - a. Nothing at all
 - b. Sending a short follow-up message the next day
 - c. Calling immediately
 - d. Asking for another interview

After you read

- What is one tip from this text that you would use before your own interview?

- Why do you think first impressions matter so much in an interview?
