Simple Present vs Present Progressive & Adverbs of Frequency

Use the simple present for habits, routines, and general facts, often with adverbs of frequency (always, usually, often, sometimes, rarely, never). Use the present progressive (am/is/are + -ing) for actions happening now or around now.

When? Use simple present for facts/habits and adverbs of frequency to say how often; use present progressive for temporary or in-progress actions.

Question Tags & Question Formation

Question tags are short questions added to the end of a statement to check information or invite agreement: a positive statement takes a negative tag, and a negative statement takes a positive tag. Wh-questions (who, where, when, how, why, what kind of) ask for specific information and are formed with a question word + auxiliary + subject + verb.

Soru etiketleri (question tags), bilgiyi doğrulamak veya onay almak için bir cümle sonuna eklenen kısa sorulardır: olumlu bir cümle olumsuz bir etiket alır, olumsuz bir cümle ise olumlu bir etiket alır. Wh- soruları (who, where, when, how, why, what kind of) belirli bir bilgi istemek için kullanılır ve soru kelimesi + yardımcı fiil + özne + fiil şeklinde kurulur.

When? Use question tags in spoken conversation to confirm information or start small talk; use wh-questions to ask for specific details.

Something/anything/nothing are indefinite pronouns: 'something' in positive statements, 'anything' in questions/negatives, 'nothing' as a negative subject/object. Object pronouns (me, you, him, her, it, us, them) replace a noun as the object of a verb or preposition. Must/can't express logical deduction: 'must' for a strong positive conclusion, 'can't' for a strong negative conclusion.

Something/anything/nothing belirsiz zamirlerdir: olumlu cümlelerde 'something', soru ve olumsuz cümlelerde 'anything', olumsuz özne/nesne olarak 'nothing' kullanılır. Nesne zamirleri (me, you, him, her, it, us, them) bir fiilin veya edatın nesnesi olarak bir ismin yerini alır. Must/can't mantıksal çıkarım belirtir: güçlü olumlu sonuç için 'must', güçlü olumsuz sonuç için 'can't' kullanılır.

When? Use these pronouns to talk about unspecified things, object pronouns to avoid repeating a noun, and must/can't when you are almost sure about something based on evidence.

Schools Around the World

Before you read

- What type of school do you attend?
- What other types of schools have you heard of?

Schools around the world look very different from one another. In many countries, most students attend public schools, which are usually free and open to everyone in the local area. Public schools often follow a national curriculum set by the government, so students in the same country study similar subjects at the same age.

Some families choose a different path. Boarding schools, for example, are places where students live during the school term instead of going home every day. Students at boarding schools eat, study, and often do extracurricular activities together, which can create a strong sense of community. Other students attend vocational schools, where the curriculum focuses on practical skills for a future job, such as mechanics, cooking, or design.

A smaller number of families choose homeschooling, in which children study at home instead of going to a school building. Parents or private tutors usually manage the curriculum, and the timetable can be more flexible than in a traditional school. Whatever the type of school, most students share similar experiences: friendships, exams, and unforgettable memories from their school years.

Dealing with School Stress

Before you read

- Do you ever feel stressed about school? When?
- What do you usually do to relax?

Feeling stressed about school is extremely common, especially before exams or big deadlines. Many students report feeling overwhelmed by their workload, worried about test results, or anxious about speaking in front of the class. This kind of stress is a normal part of student life, but it becomes a problem when it starts to affect sleep, appetite, or motivation.

Fortunately, there are simple strategies that can help students cope with school stress. Planning ahead and breaking large tasks into smaller steps can make a heavy workload feel more manageable. Regular exercise, even a short walk after school, can also reduce tension and improve concentration. Talking to a friend, family member, or teacher about how you feel is another effective way to cope, because it stops worries from building up inside.

Teachers and schools also have a role to play. Some schools now offer quiet rooms where students can relax between lessons, or organise workshops about time management. When students learn to recognise the signs of stress early and use these strategies, school can feel less like a source of anxiety and more like a place to learn and grow.
