1. Look at the title. What kind of food do you think you can find at a street food festival?

2. Guess: what three things might people do at a food festival?

The Balıkesir Street Food Festival

- 1 Every September, our town holds the Balıkesir Street Food Festival, and it's one of my favourite weekends of the year. Dozens of food stalls line the main square, and the smell of grilled sweetcorn and spicy sauces fills the air.
- 2 This year, my family is trying food from five different countries. At one stall, a vendor is making fresh falafel with chickpeas, herbs and a squeeze of lemon. At another, a woman is grilling Turkish pizza — thin, crispy and topped with minced meat and vegetables.
- 3 My little brother always asks the same Wh-question at every stall: 'What's in this dish?' He loves sweetcorn with cream and cheese, and he doesn't stop eating it until it's finished! I prefer something spicier, so I usually order falafel or a stuffed pepper.
- 4 The festival isn't only about eating, though. There's live music, a cooking competition, and a stage where local chefs show their family recipes to the crowd. Right now, a famous local chef is demonstrating how to make a traditional dessert with homemade cream.
- 5 By the end of the day, we are all full, happy and a little bit sleepy. For me, the best part of the festival is trying a new flavour every year — and finding out which local specialty I like best.

My Grandmother's Stuffed Peppers

- 1 In my family, Sunday lunch always means one thing: my grandmother's stuffed peppers. It's a traditional recipe that she learned from her own mother, and now she's teaching it to me, step by step.
- 2 This morning, we are preparing the ingredients together in her kitchen. She is washing the peppers while I am chopping onions, tomatoes and fresh herbs. 'What do we add next?' I ask her, and she always answers with a smile: 'A little rice, a little love.'
- 3 My grandmother says every family has its own version of this dish — some add sweetcorn, some use different spices, and some make it spicier than others. Ours isn't very spicy, but it's full of flavour, with rice, herbs and a spoonful of cream on top.
- 4 While the peppers are cooking slowly in the oven, we sit at the table and my grandmother tells stories about her own childhood. She often asks me Wh-questions like 'Do you prefer this dish or your mother's soup?' — and I honestly can't choose!
- 5 When the stuffed peppers are finally ready, the whole house smells delicious. For me, this homemade meal isn't only about the taste — it's about spending time with my grandmother and keeping our family's recipe alive for the next generation.
