Causative: Have/Get Something Done

1 · NOTICE

- My grandfather never had his photo taken as a child — cameras were rare back then.
- We're going to get the old family house repainted before the reunion this summer.
- She doesn't cook every dish herself; she often has meals delivered by her granddaughter instead.
- Could you get your brother to fix the Wi-Fi for your grandmother? She can't get online.

In these sentences, does the subject of the sentence do the action themselves, or does someone else do it for them?

2 · DISCOVER — A · COMPLETE THE RULE

Look at the Notice sentences again. Complete the rule with the words in the box.

have/get + object + past participle

someone else does it for us

get + person + to + verb

1. We use 'have/get something done' when _____.
2. The structure for the causative with a thing as the object is _____.
3. When we want to say we persuaded or arranged for a specific person to do something, we use _____.

B Build sentences

Use the cues to build true sentences with the causative.

e.g. my mother have / her hair / cut every month

My mother has her hair cut every month.

1. my grandparents get / their garden / looked after by a neighbour

2. we have / the old photos / scanned last weekend

3. my father never / get / his car / washed he always does it himself

4. could you get / your cousin / to explain the new app to your grandmother?

5. ? / your family ever / have / a family portrait / painted

C Your turn

Write four sentences about things your family has done for them, or things you could get a family member to do for you.

My grandparents have...

Last year, we had...

I'm going to get my...

My parents never get...

RULE

We use 'have/get something done' when someone else does an action for us, instead of doing it ourselves: have/get + object + past participle (e.g. have your hair cut). We use 'get someone to do something' when we persuade or arrange for a specific person to do it (e.g. get your brother to fix the Wi-Fi).

TR Bir işi kendimiz yapmak yerine başka birine yaptırdığımızda 'have/get something done' yapısını kullanırız: have/get + nesne + past participle (Ör: have your hair cut). Belirli bir kişiyi bir şey yapmaya ikna ettiğimizde ya da ayarladığımızda 'get someone to do something' yapısı kullanılır (Ör: get your brother to fix the Wi-Fi).

When?

We use these structures to talk about having a service done by someone else (getting a haircut, having a car washed) or asking a family member to do something for us.

TR Bir hizmeti başkasına yaptırdığımızı (kuaförde saç kestirmek, arabayı yıkatmak) ya da bir aile üyesinden bir şey yapmasını istediğimizi anlatırken bu yapıları kullanırız.

Asking for and Giving Advice: should, ought to, had better, if I were you, why don't you

1 · NOTICE

- If you want a closer relationship with your grandparents, you should call them more often, not just text.
- You ought to listen to your parents' experience before dismissing their advice completely.
- You had better ask your grandmother about the family recipe before it's forgotten forever.
- Why don't you ask your father to teach you how he learned to save money as a teenager?

Which expressions give general advice, and which one sounds like a stronger warning about something urgent?

2 · DISCOVER — A · COMPLETE THE RULE

Complete the rule with the words in the box.

general advice    a stronger warning, often with a negative consequence a friendly suggestion, as a question    imagining yourself in someone's situation

- 'Should' and 'ought to' give _____.
- 'Had better' gives _____.
- 'Why don't you...?' offers _____.
- 'If I were you, I would...' means _____.

B Build sentences

Use the cues to build true or realistic advice sentences. Choose the most suitable expression.

e.g. you    should / spend more time    with your grandparents

You should spend more time with your grandparents.

1. you ought to / respect your elders' experience
2. you had better / apologise before your grandmother gets upset
3. why / don't you ask your father for advice about the interview?
4. if I / were you I / would talk to my parents honestly
5. ? / what / should I do if my grandparents disagree with my choices?

C Your turn

Write four sentences giving advice about handling a generational disagreement — use at least three different advice expressions.

If your grandparents don't understand..., you should...

You ought to...

Why don't you...

If I were you, I would...

RULE

'Should' and 'ought to' give general advice. 'Had better' gives a stronger warning, often implying a negative consequence if not followed. 'Why don't you...?' offers a friendly suggestion as a question. 'If I were you, I would...' gives advice by imagining yourself in someone else's situation.

TR Genel tavsiye vermek için 'should' ve 'ought to' kullanılır. Daha güçlü, ciddi sonuçları olan bir uyarı için 'had better' kullanılır. Nazik bir öneriyi soru şeklinde sunmak için 'Why don't you...?' kullanılır. Kendimizi birinin yerine koyarak tavsiye vermek için 'If I were you, I would...' kullanılır.

When?

We use these expressions when exchanging advice within a family or across generations, especially when a polite or respectful tone is needed.

TR Aile içinde ya da kuşaklar arasında tavsiye alışverişinde bulunurken, özellikle nazik ya da saygılı bir üslup gerektiğinde bu yapıları kullanırız.

1 Before you read

Make predictions before you read.

1. Look at the title. What do you think 'the same river, different banks' might mean about generations?
2. What is one thing your grandparents' generation did differently from yours?

The Same River, Different Banks

- 1 Every generation likes to believe it invented independence. Grandparents in Türkiye often describe childhoods spent playing football in the street until dark, with no phone to call home and no need for one — the whole neighbourhood, they say, looked after every child. Their grandchildren, meanwhile, grew up with smartphones in their pockets and a constant stream of messages from worried parents. Which generation was really freer is a question that rarely gets a simple answer.
- 2 Sociologists suggest that each generation's outlook is shaped less by personality than by the economic and technological conditions it grows up in. A generation that lived through hardship often values saving money and repairing things rather than replacing them; a generation raised with instant information often values speed, choice and self-expression instead. Neither outlook is wrong — they are simply sensible responses to very different worlds.
- 3 The real danger, researchers argue, isn't the generation gap itself but the assumption that it can't be bridged. Families who regularly talk about their different experiences — rather than judging each other by their own generation's standards — tend to pass down both practical skills and emotional closeness. A grandmother who gets her granddaughter to show her how video calls work, and a granddaughter who asks her grandmother how she once cooked for a family of ten on a tight budget, are both quietly closing the same gap.

Circle the correct option.

1. What is the main idea of the text?
  - a Older generations were always freer than younger ones.
  - b Each generation's outlook is shaped by its own conditions, and the gap can be bridged through mutual sharing.
  - c Technology has made family relationships impossible.
2. According to sociologists, each generation's outlook is shaped by _____ and technological conditions.
3. According to the text, what is the 'real danger' regarding the generation gap?
  - a That grandparents don't understand smartphones
  - b The assumption that the gap can't be bridged
  - c That young people don't want to learn to cook
4. According to the text, one generation's outlook is simply wrong compared to another's.
☐ Correct ☐ Incorrect
5. The final paragraph gives an example of a grandmother who gets her granddaughter to show her how _____ work.

Letters, Landlines and Loud Dinners

- 1 Merve's grandfather still keeps a box of handwritten letters from his years working abroad in the 1970s. 'We waited weeks for news,' he tells her, 'and every letter felt like an event.' Merve, who video-calls her cousins in Germany every weekend without a second thought, finds the story almost impossible to imagine — yet she notices that her grandfather remembers the exact words of letters he received fifty years ago, while she sometimes forgets a text message within minutes.
- 2 The family's Sunday dinners are where these two worlds collide loudest. Merve's grandmother insists that everyone sit at the table with their phones switched off, a rule she enforces with surprising firmness for someone so soft-spoken otherwise. At first, Merve found the rule old-fashioned and slightly unfair. Over time, though, she noticed that these were the only two hours each week when her whole extended family actually looked at one another while talking.
- 3 Merve's mother, caught between both generations, often acts as a translator of sorts — explaining to her own mother why a video call matters as much as a letter once did, and reminding Merve that patience, not just connection, was something her grandfather's generation had in abundance. Nobody in the family has fully convinced the others that their way is best. What they have managed, slowly, is to borrow a little from each generation and build something that works for all three.
