Present Perfect: talking about life experiences

We use the Present Perfect (have/has + past participle) for life experiences from the past that are connected to now, when we don't say exactly when they happened. Negative: haven't/hasn't + past participle. Question: Have/Has + subject + past participle?

Present Perfect (have/has + fiilin 3. hâli), geçmişte olan ama şu anla bağlantılı olan ya da hayatta ne zaman olduğu önemli olmayan deneyimleri anlatmak için kullanılır. Olumsuzda haven't/hasn't, soruda Have/Has başa gelir.

When? We use it to talk about travel experiences, food we have tried, and things that have happened in our lives, when the exact time isn't important.

Seyahat deneyimlerini, denenen yemekleri ve hayatta yaşanan şeyleri, ne zaman olduğu önemli olmadan anlatırken kullanırız.

Positive

- I have visited three continents.
- She has tried Japanese food.

Negative

- We haven't been to South America yet.
- He hasn't eaten octopus.

Question

- Have you ever eaten street food?
- Has she visited Africa?

Short answers

- Yes, I have. / No, I haven't.

Question tags with the Present Perfect

A question tag is a short question added to the end of a Present Perfect sentence, usually to check information. If the main sentence is positive, the tag is negative; if the main sentence is negative, the tag is positive. The tag always uses the same auxiliary verb, have/has.

Question tag, Present Perfect ile kurulan cümlelerin sonuna eklenen kısa bir sorudur ve genellikle onay almak için kullanılır. Ana cümle olumluysa etiket olumsuz, ana cümle olumsuzsa etiket olumlu olur. Etiket her zaman aynı yardımcı fiil (have/has) kullanılır.

When? We use question tags to check information or keep a conversation going, especially when talking about experiences.

Bir bilgiyi doğrulamak ya da sohbeti sürdürmek için, özellikle deneyimlerden bahsederken kullanırız.

Superlative adjectives: comparing countries, cities and dishes

Superlative adjectives show which thing is the most/least of a quality among three or more things, and always use 'the'. Short adjectives take -est (long → longest); a single vowel + consonant doubles the consonant (big → biggest); adjectives ending in -y change to -iest (easy → easiest). Long adjectives use 'the most' (delicious → the most delicious). Good, bad and far are irregular: best, worst, furthest.

Superlative sıfatlar, üç veya daha fazla şey arasında en üstün olanı belirtmek için kullanılır ve başına 'the' gelir. Kısa sıfatlara -est eklenir (long → longest); tek ünlü + ünsüzle biten sıfatlarda son ünsüz ikilenir (big → biggest); y ile bitenlerde y, i olur (easy → easiest). Uzun sıfatlarda 'the most' kullanılır (delicious → the most delicious). good/bad/far düzensizdir: best/worst/furthest.

When? We use superlatives to compare countries, continents, cities and dishes, to say which one is the most/least of something.

Ülkeleri, kıtaları, şehirleri ve yemekleri karşılaştırırken, en üstün olanı belirtmek için kullanılır.

Countable and uncountable nouns

Countable nouns can be counted one by one; they have singular and plural forms and use a/an in the singular (an apple, two apples). Uncountable nouns cannot be counted one by one; they usually have no plural form and don't use a/an (rice, milk, cheese).

Sayılabilir isimler (countable) tek tek sayılabilir; tekil ve çoğul hâlleri vardır ve tekilken a/an ile kullanılırlar (an apple, two apples). Sayılamayan isimler (uncountable) tek tek sayılmaz; genellikle çoğul hâlleri yoktur ve a/an ile kullanılmazlar (rice, milk, cheese).

When? We need to know which food words are countable and which are uncountable when we talk about recipes, shopping or food in general.

Bir yemek tarifi, market alışverişi ya da yiyecek konuşurken hangi kelimenin sayılabilir hangisinin sayılamayan olduğunu bilmek gerekir.

Positive

Quantifiers: some, any, much, many, a lot of, a little, a few

Some is used with countable and uncountable nouns in positive sentences and offers (Would you like some...?). Any is used in negative sentences and questions. Much is used with uncountable nouns, and many with plural countable nouns, mainly in negatives and questions. A lot of works with both, usually in positive sentences. A little (a small amount, uncountable) and a few (a small number, countable) show small quantities.

Some, olumlu cümlelerde ve tekliflerde (Would you like some...?) hem sayılabilir hem sayılamayan isimlerle kullanılır. Any, olumsuz cümlelerde ve sorularda kullanılır. Much sayılamayan isimlerle, many sayılabilir çoğul isimlerle, özellikle olumsuz ve sorularda kullanılır. A lot of her ikisiyle de, genelde olumlu cümlelerde kullanılır. A little (az miktar, sayılamayan) ve a few (az sayı, sayılabilir) küçük miktarları belirtir.

When? We use quantifiers to talk about amounts, especially when shopping or describing the ingredients in a recipe.

Miktar hakkında konuşurken, özellikle alışveriş yaparken ya da bir tarifi malzemelerini anlatırken kullanılır.

Positive

- There's a lot of cheese in the fridge.
- We need a few more tomatoes.

Negative

Seven Continents, One Small World

Before you read

- How many continents can you name? Try to list all seven before you read.
- Guess: which continent has the largest population?

Our planet has seven continents: Africa, Antarctica, Asia, Australia, Europe, North America and South America. Each continent has its own countries, nationalities, languages and flags, and together they make our world an amazing, varied place.

Asia is the biggest continent, and it also has the largest population — more people live there than on any other continent. China and India alone have over a billion people each! Africa is the second biggest continent, with over fifty different countries and hundreds of official languages.

Some continents have a lot of countries close together, sharing borders and cultures. In Europe, for example, you can travel from one country to another and hear a different official language after just a few hours. Other continents, like Australia, are made up of just one country and a group of islands nearby.

Every country has a flag, a capital city and a nationality that people are proud of. If you have ever met someone from another continent, you have probably learned something new about their country's culture, food or traditions.

This theme is your chance to go continent-hopping without leaving the classroom — to learn about nationalities, borders and populations, and to discover how people from different parts of the world live, shop and eat.

1. What is the text mainly about?

- a. The history of flags
- b. The seven continents of the world
- c. How to become a geographer

2. Which continent has the largest population?

- a. Africa
- b. Asia
- c. Europe

3. How many different countries does Africa have, according to the text?

- a. About seven
- b. About twenty
- c. Over fifty

4. In paragraph 3, what does the writer say about Europe?

- a. It has only one country
- b. You can hear a different official language after a short journey
- c. It has no borders

5. According to the text, every continent has exactly the same number of countries. — True / False

6. What is the writer inviting the reader to do in this theme?

- AbOnlineEnglish Upper Secondary — Lise Hazırlık — Complete Theme · Orijinal içerik, TYMM müfredatıyla uyumlu.
- a. Travel abroad this weekend
 - b. Learn about nationalities, borders and food culture from the classroom
 - c. Memorise every flag in the world

After you read

- Name one country from each continent you can think of. Try for at least four continents.
- Which continent would you most like to visit, and why? Write two sentences.

A Taste of the World: Street Food and Traditions

Before you read

- What is your favourite traditional dish from your own country?
- Guess: what is 'street food'? Think of an example you know.

Have you ever tried street food in another country? In many cities around the world, small stalls and carts sell some of the most delicious and famous dishes — often cheaper and tastier than in a restaurant!

In Thailand, street vendors sell spicy noodle dishes and fresh fruit. In Mexico, you can find tacos with many different fillings. In Türkiye, simit and köfte are popular street food, and every region has its own traditional dish that local people are proud of.

Food culture isn't only about street food, though. It's also about how people shop for ingredients. In some countries, families go to a big grocery store once a week; in others, they visit a small local market every day for fresh vegetables, fruit and bread.

More and more people today also have special food preferences. Some are vegetarian, some choose gluten-free or dairy-free products, and shops in most big cities now have a special section for these ingredients so that everyone can find something they enjoy.

Trying a country's traditional dishes and street food is one of the best ways to understand its culture. That's why, in this theme's project, you and your classmates will create a booklet about a culinary adventure — exploring continents, countries and the wonderful food cultures of the world.

1. What is the text mainly about?

- a. How to open a restaurant
- b. Street food and food culture around the world
- c. The history of Thailand

2. According to the text, why might street food be better than a restaurant meal?

- a. It is always healthier
- b. It can be cheaper and tastier
- c. It is only available at night

3. What street food does the text mention from Türkiye?

- a. Tacos and noodles
- b. Simit and köfte
- c. Sushi and rice

4. Why do some shops now have a special section for gluten-free or dairy-free products?

- a. Because these products are cheaper
- b. Because more people today have special food preferences
- c. Because the government requires it

5. According to the text, all families around the world shop for food in exactly the same way. — True / False

6. What project does the text introduce at the end?

- a. A cooking competition
- b. A culinary adventure booklet about continents, countries and food cultures
- c. A trip abroad

After you read

- Have you ever tried street food or a dish from another country? Write two sentences about the experience.
- List two food preferences (e.g. vegetarian, gluten-free) you know about and one dish that fits each one.

Shopping for Food Preferences

Before you listen

- You will hear a conversation between a customer and a shop assistant in a grocery store.
- Predict: what two food preferences might the customer have? Think of two examples.

1. What is the customer's food preference?

- a. Gluten-free
- b. Vegetarian
- c. Dairy-free

2. Where is the gluten-free bread?

- a. Next to the vegetables
- b. Next to the dairy-free milk
- c. Next to the recipe cards

3. Why does the customer buy gluten-free bread for her sister?

- a. Her sister has never eaten gluten
- b. Her sister works at the shop
- c. Her sister is vegetarian too

4. What does the customer buy, according to the text?

- a. Tomatoes, rice and bread
- b. Meat, milk and tofu
- c. Fruit, cheese and pasta

5. The customer has tried the shop's recipe cards before. — True / False

Planning the Culinary Adventure Project

Before you listen

- You will hear two classmates planning their culinary adventure booklet project.
- Predict: which continents and countries might they choose to research? Think of two.

1. What are Mira and Kaan planning?

- a. A sports project
- b. A culinary adventure booklet
- c. A geography test

2. Which country has Kaan already chosen?

- a. Mexico
- b. Morocco
- c. Japan

3. Which continent is Mexico from?

- AbOnlinEnglish Upper Secondary — Lise Hazırlık — Complete Theme · Orijinal içerik, TYMM müfredatıyla uyumlu.
- ☐ a. North America
 - ☐ b. Asia
 - ☐ c. Africa

4. What kind of shopping trip will they write about?

- ☐ a. A vegetarian shopping trip
- ☐ b. A gluten-free shopping trip
- ☐ c. An online shopping trip

5. Kaan has tried Mexican food before. — True / False

Guess My Country

Pairs / small groups · 10-12 min

Think of a country. Your partner asks yes/no questions with Present Perfect and comparative/superlative language to guess it, e.g. 'Have you ever been there?' or 'Is it the biggest country on its continent?'

Useful language: Have you ever visited this country?, Is it in Europe / Asia / Africa...?, Is it the biggest / smallest country in its continent?, Yes, it is. / No, it isn't. / Yes, I have. / No, I haven't.

1. Think of a country and write its name secretly on a small piece of paper.
2. Your partner asks up to eight yes/no questions to guess the country.
3. Answer only Yes/No — don't give the country away too early!
4. Swap roles and play again with a new country.
5. Share your two favourite questions with the class.

Shopping for Traditional Food — Role-Play

Pairs · 12-15 min

With a partner, act out a shopping scene at a market or shop. One of you is a customer with a food preference (vegetarian, gluten-free or dairy-free) shopping for a traditional dish from another culture; the other is the shop assistant. This role-play is preparation for your culinary adventure booklet.

Useful language: I'm vegetarian / gluten-free / dairy-free. Do you have...?, We have some fresh.../ We don't have any... left., How much / how many... do you need?, Have you ever tried...? It's the most popular dish here.

1. Choose a country and a traditional dish you want to shop for.
2. Decide your character: Customer A (with a food preference) or Shop Assistant B.
3. Act out the scene: greet, ask for ingredients, talk about quantities and preferences.
4. Use at least two grammar points from this theme in your dialogue.
5. Perform your scene for another pair and get feedback.

Writing

The World in Superlatives

60-80 words

Write a short text comparing three countries or continents you have researched. Use at least three superlative adjectives and one sentence with the Present Perfect about an experience.

Plan:

1. Choose three countries or continents to compare.
2. Note one superlative fact about each (biggest, most interesting, most popular food...).
3. Add one sentence about something you have or haven't experienced.
4. Check your grammar and punctuation.

Checklist:

- ☐ I used at least three superlative adjectives correctly.
- ☐ I included one sentence with the Present Perfect.
- ☐ I used at least three target words from Vocabulary.
- ☐ I checked my spelling and capital letters.

My Culinary Adventure Booklet Page

70-100 words
